The ☒ Allo digital dictionary platform was presented in a 30-minute keynote session at the 24th Biennial Conference of the Dictionary Society of North America (DSNA-24) at the University of Colorado, Boulder. Since 1977, the DSNA conference has brought together experts and professionals from the fields of lexicography and linguistics. The creator of ☒ Allo and presenter at the conference, Boban Dedovic, explained the need for combining physical print books into a single digital tool. A live demonstration of the platform's first complete language, ☒ Allo Latin, was shown before an audience of experts and followed by a question and answer segment.

☒ Allo is available on the Internet for free at <https://ancientlanguages.org>, and is sponsored by the OMNIKA Foundation, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit whose mission is to digitize ancient texts related to mythology. The presentation included a brief conference paper, which underwent peer review by conference organizer and lexicographer Orin Hargraves and other language experts. A full video of the presentation is available online via <https://youtube.com/watch?v=WCPI20FG5Hw>.

About ☒ Allo

View website ► <https://ancientlanguages.org>

☒ Allo is a modern digital dictionary platform for dead ancient languages like Latin, Sumerian, and others. The ancientlanguages.org website provides the top 1,000 words in each ancient language alongside the following features: audio pronunciations, conjugation/declension tables, dictionary entries, and other tools for advanced learners. The service is free and operated by the OMNIKA Foundation, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit focused on digitizing mythology-related content. Anyone can use dictionaries like ☒ Allo Latin to look up and find the meanings of words they are unfamiliar with.
